Adviser to SCHELLENBERG on political affairs abroad. 4. Kraemer told prisoner that he did not belong to the RSHA, but that through his friend Wirsing, he had direct communication with the head of Amt VI, SCHELLENBERG. ..... Prisoner states that he has never been in contact with SCHELLENBERG. ..... It appeared to prisoner that SCHELLENBERG and Himmler both wished to obtain a picture of the international situation from other sources than Ribbentrop. .... 5. .... Kraemer told prisoner of his friendship with Wirsing, and informed him of Wirsing's position as adviser to SCHELLENBERG on matters of foreign policy. .... Kramer and prisoner decided that they would use Wirsing for direct contact with SCHELLENBERG. .... 8. .... Finally Wirsing promised to discuss prisoner's Scandinavian problems with SCHELLENBERG, if he would let him have them in the form of a memorandum from Stockholm (see para 10). 9. Prisoner states that during the conversations he asked Wirsing what SCHELLENBERG's personal views on Hitler were. Wirsing replied that SCHELLENBERG knew that Hitler was no longer master of the situation, and had even said that Hitler's brain was affected.. Prisoner adds that according to Wirsing, SCHELLENBERG could not be expected to persuade Himmler to commit high treason, but could only present to him a true picture of the situation, so that Himmler would be forced to consider the situation himself, and decide whether it called for such an extreme measure. .... (continued)

APPENDIX F

3. ....
Prisoner asserts that he then informed Brodersen of the discussions he was having with Gen. Lt von Uthmann, German Military Attaché in Sweden, and with the Swedish Foreign Office; he further told Brodersen of his contact with SHELLENBERG through Krämer and Wirsing. ....

7.a) Prisoner states that at the time of the above-mentioned conference in April 45, Sweden was already in comm. with SHELLENBERG and Himmler through Bernadotte, and he believes that the readiness of both Himmler and SHELLENBERG to agree to the Swedish requests was largely brought about by the Pfeleiderer-Krämer-Wirsing-Finke reports, especially as regards the Norwegians and Danes at Neuengamme. According to prisoner, this cooperation with the Swedes is not mentioned in Bernadotte's book "Slutet" (The End).

d) Prisoner states that SHELLENBERG, who was appointed by Dönitz as German representative in Stockholm of the Dönitz Govt., travelled to Stockholm with Swedish documents issued to him by the Swedish legation in Copenhagen. Thomsen had told prisoner to make out a diplomatic passport for SHELLENBERG, at the request of Bernadotte, who was concealing him.
